Welcome Will Be A Noisy One

Gen. MacArthur At Honolulu Runs Into Near Riot As Plane Lands

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's homecoming will be heralded by big and noisy "welcome" tributes in many communities across the nation.

The programs signalling the general's return after 14 years in the Far East call for parades, receptions, whistle blowing, horn tooting, and ringing of church bells.

Most observances are timed to coincide with MacArthur's arrival in San Francisco, now expected late Tuesday.

San Francisco and New York City are planning what will probably be the most spectacular tributes to the five-star general.

But the celebrations are not limited to the cities on MacArthur's itinerary. Typical of the various honors is the proclamation of "MacArthur Day" Tuesday in Rotterdam, N. Y.

The Golden Gate city will give MacArthur an official hero's welcome sometime Wednesday.

A formal reception at the airport, a parade into San Francisco, and greetings at the city hall had been scheduled.

In New York City, MacArthur is booked for a returning hero's parade on Broadway Friday. The general will arrive in New York late Thursday.

Rep. Joe Martin (R-Mass.) said in Washington yesterday that the general would fly to the nation's capital from San Francisco on Thursday to address congress that afternoon.

Into Near Riot

By Frank H. King and William J. Waugh

HONOLULU, April 16—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Honolulu early this morning and a near-riot raged near the ramp of his Constellation transport plane as he shook hands with Air Force police.

The five-star general, making his first trip to the United States in 14 years, remained aloof to the melee. The scuffle raged a few feet behind him as he shook hands with Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Hawaii's Gov. Ingram Stainback and Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr.

At least a dozen photographers were roughed up by the Air Force police.

The "Bataan"—it was "SCAP" before MacArthur was stripped of his commands—touched down at Hickam air field at 12:28 a. m. (4:28 a. m. CST) Seven minutes later the general set foot on American soil for the first time since his 1950 Wake Island conference with President Truman.

With the deposed supreme commander was his wife, his 13-year-old son, Arthur, and aides and staff members.

As MacArthur's plane turned broadside into the floodlights of Hickam field the crowd gathered at the airport began to cheer and clap.

Mrs. MacArthur appeared first at the doorway of the plane. Behind her the general waved, his face wreathed in smiles for a brief moment.

He followed Mrs. MacArthur down the ramp. Young MacArthur was at his side.

The photographers were trying to get a clear picture of the general's party. They were thwarted by the Air Force police.

AP photographer Paul Strong said the police began shoving the photographers around even before the ramp was pushed up to the plane.

"Two Air Force police grabbed one guy and literally patted him through the air," Strong said. "He actually bounced."

Strong said one public information officer, Maj. Ernest P. Schwartz, "did everything in his power to stop the police."

The general and his party were supposed to go down a long line to meet civilian and military officials. But this reception broke off when everyone pressed forward around the controversial military leader.

Lt. Col. Anthony Storey, MacArthur's personal pilot, was actually the first man off the plane. He walked half way down the ramp and then walked back to assist Mrs. MacArthur down the steps.

She was dressed in a purple suit and was grinning broadly as she descended.

The general was wearing a dark olive drab uniform with Eisenhower battle jacket. His head gear was his famous sun-tan gold-leafed hat.

MacArthur's arrival was without fanfare. Still military protocol prevailed. Hickam field was closed to the public. Naval authorities were in tight, efficient command.

A limousine waited on the runway for the MacArthur party. The general and his family were taken to Adm. A. W. Radford's guest house in the Pearl Harbor (Please turn to page 4, Column 6)

MacArthur to Be Heard in Joint Session

House Agrees That General is to Appear On Thursday

WASHINGTON, April 16—(AP)—The House agreed unanimously today to a joint meeting with the Senate Thursday to hear Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) asked that the House empower Speaker Rayburn to declare a recess during the regular session Thursday so that MacArthur could be heard.

There was no objection, so the matter was settled.

No further action by Congress is necessary, since the unanimous consent request implied an invitation to the deposed general to speak. However, the Senate tomorrow must go through the formality of deciding to come to the House chamber Thursday to hear MacArthur. The Senate was not meeting today.

The White House, meantime said MacArthur is welcome to call on President Truman while here if he asks for an appointment.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short made this clear at a news conference. He said the President's army aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, will represent Mr. Truman at the airport when MacArthur arrives.

This meant that Mr. Truman himself would not be on hand for the military welcome to the five-star general.

Vaughn once served under MacArthur in Australia.

Short was asked if he thought MacArthur will call at the White House.

"I haven't heard of the general asking for an appointment," Short said.

Extend Every Courtesy

Rayburn, Texas Democrat, told reporters earlier after a White House visit that Democratic leaders had assured Mr. Truman "we are going to extend every courtesy to General MacArthur."

This was after Mr. Truman's regular Monday morning meeting with his Congressional leaders.

Rayburn outlined to reporters then the plan for McCormack to ask unanimous consent for an address by MacArthur.

MacArthur advised the Senate Armed Services committee today he would be available to appear before it at any time after he has addressed Congress.

Russell (D-Ga.) sent the five-star general an invitation last week to give the committee his views on what should be military policy in the Far East.

Rayburn said it means a joint meeting of the two Houses of Congress in the House chamber.

While Senate action is not necessary, McCormack said, "I expect the Senate to go along with the action of the House."

"As far as I'm personally concerned," McFarland told reporters, "I expect to insist upon every possible courtesy for the general."

Rayburn, McFarland, Vice-President Barkley and McCormack participated in the White House conference.

Both Rayburn and McFarland said it would not be necessary for the Senate to pass any resolution at all since the senators would be invited to the joint meeting in the House under McCormack's unanimous consent request.

Aside from talking about MacArthur, the Democratic leaders said the White House conference had a briefing by Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, on battlefield reports from Korea.

They would not discuss Bradley's briefing.

Dick Contino is Missing at Fort

MONTEREY, Calif., April 16—(AP)—Dick Contino, 20-year-old accordion artist who disappeared from Fort Ord Friday, still was missing today. Army officials said he is not a volunteer in his barracks.

Contino arrived with a group of draftees. He did not show up for roll call Saturday. Officers said there was no evidence his bed had been slept in Friday night.

Lt. Col. Max H. Shostak, in charge of the reception center, said Contino had not been sworn in and the army had no jurisdiction over him.

The musician was performing at a Los Angeles night club for $2,500 a week before he reported to Fort Ord, accompanied by his parents. They said they knew nothing of his whereabouts.

Powell named the following to serve on the executive committee: Baird Thiessen, St. Joseph; Tom Ellis, Springfield and Elwood Hobbs, Kansas City.

The group's next meeting will be at St. Joseph.

Others at the meeting were: W. H. Brunkhorst, Springfield; D. Hamel, Columbia; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Graebner, Columbia; Ned Chew, St. Louis; C. L. Blanton, Jr., Sikeston; George H. Ober, Joplin; Arch Watson, Springfield and Paul R. Mignard, Springfield.

The Associated Press was represented by Frank G. Gorrie, Kansas City; Al Dopking, St. Louis and Larry Hall, Jefferson City.

The stations had sought to defend themselves on the ground they were forbidden by the federal communications act from censoring the speeches complained about in the suit.

The high court handed down no opinions today but in other actions it:

1. Split 6 to 2 in letting stand a lower court decision that a Washington State Legislative committee can compel a witness to say whether he was a Communist.

Burton James appealed from a one-month jail sentence and a $250 fine given him for refusing to answer questions asked by the Washington State Fact-Finding committee on un-American activities. The state's supreme court held James could not have incriminated himself because the Communist party is legal in Washington.

2. Also let stand a decision which upheld the validity of New York state's Sabbath observance law. Sen. Frank P. La Follette and Sam Frank, Orthodox Jews and retailers of kosher meat in New York City, appealed on the grounds that the state law permits sale of bread, milk and eggs on Sunday, but prohibits the sale of meat and fish and "permits one to attend a professional football game on the Lord's day but does not permit him to have his hair cut."

3. Refused a hearing to Leon Johnson who has been held in jail at Pittsburgh, Pa., for eight years pending a final ruling as to whether he must go back to Georgia to serve out a life sentence for the fatal shooting of a woman. Johnson escaped from a Georgia prison camp shortly after his conviction. Today's refusal of a hearing does not necessarily mean an end to the case. New court moves may be possible in Pennsylvania.

4. Agreed to review a decision that the Secretary of Agriculture lacked authority to provide in a Boston milk order for payments designed to equalize returns to milk producers the year around.

The suit involving censorship of political speeches was filed by David H. H. Felix, a Philadelphia lawyer. He sued Westinghouse Radio Stations, Inc., Triangle Publications, Inc., and Station WCAU, Inc., for asserted defamation in two campaign speeches broadcast Oct. 24 and 25, 1949, by William F. Meade.

Meade was chairman of the Republican Central Campaign in Philadelphia. He had been authorized to speak on behalf of candidates for city controller and other offices. Felix, a Socialist, had no connection with the campaign and the appeal papers did not make clear why he brought the suit.

Censorship of Radio Speeches Is Privileged

High Court Holds Witness Must Say Whether 'Commie'

WASHINGTON, April 16—(AP)—A decision that radio stations may censor speeches made by persons talking on behalf of political candidates was left unchanged today by the supreme court.

It refused to review the ruling by the U. S. circuit court in Philadelphia in a case in which three radio stations there were sued for $50,000 each.

The stations had sought to defend themselves on the ground they were forbidden by the federal communications act from censoring the speeches complained about in the suit.

Board May File Own Suit

Attorney General Says He Cannot Take Action

JEFFERSON CITY, April 16—(AP)—Attorney General J. E. Taylor told the State Mediation board today to file its own suit to test the constitutionality of Missouri's Utility Anti-strike law.

"I could not possibly comply with your request to file legal proceedings against the State Board of Mediation," he said, "for in my opinion the State Board of Mediation is nonexistent."

Today's letter was in answer to a letter from the board. The board wanted Taylor himself to start court action.

This is the rocky road the anti-strike law has traveled in the past month.

1. The supreme court of the United States held unconstitutional a somewhat similar Wisconsin law.

2. On request of the legislature, Taylor ruled that the supreme court opinion applied as well to the Missouri law. The three-year-old Missouri act also is unconstitutional, Taylor said.

3. He held further that the state couldn't pay the Mediation board expenses and salaries for administering the anti-strike law.

4. The Mediation board refused to quit, asking Taylor instead to file suit.

Letter to Members

Taylor said in his letter to the board members today:

"I could institute a legal proceeding against you as individuals to determine whether or not my opinion holding the King-Thompson act unconstitutional correctly declares the law. But since I have no doubt that it does I see no reason for doing so at the present time."

"I am sure you gentlemen are aware that you have a plain, expeditious remedy to determine your right to the offices you claim, the emoluments thereof and the constitutionality of the act under which you were appointed."</

Real Issue in MacArthur and Truman Controversy is Civilian or Military Rule

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(Ed. Note — Today's column takes the form of a letter from Drew Pearson to Sen. Robert A. Taft on the MacArthur-Truman controversy.)

April 14, 1951
Honorable Robert A. Taft
U. S. Senate
Washington, D. C.
Dear Senator Taft:

When your father was President of the United States, my father-in-law, a general and a military man all his life, had about the same opinion of him that Douglas MacArthur has of the present occupant of the White House. In fact, your father, whom history records as having done a fine job as secretary of war, incurred the wrath of many military men, because he both kept within his budget and kept the military in their place.

He fully grasped the fundamental fact around which our constitution is written—that ours is a civilian government, in which the military take orders from civilians. He even carried it out so conscientiously that, when your father was secretary of war and used to come to the White House, Teddy Roosevelt would jokingly tell Mrs. Roosevelt to put away the carving knife for fear my father-in-law, a cousin and aide of T. R., might use it against Taft. I mention this because you, of all Senate leaders, are in a position to grasp and understand the serious issue which faces the country today in the MacArthur Truman controversy.

I mention it because the easiest thing in the world today is to join the wolfpack and kick Harry Truman in the pants. You, however, have not attained your present position by taking the easy way.

And you, in view of your father's record, in view of your own record as a champion of the constitution, can better understand this fundamental issue than any other man I know.

Take Off the Uniform
This issue is the constitution of the United States—which provides that, if a general wants to run the government, he must take off his uniform and become a civilian like the rest of us. He cannot have the perquisites and protection of the uniform and give orders to the White House too.

Furthermore, you cannot have a general who has been running for President of the United States. That also is implicit in the constitution.

As far as President Truman is concerned, my personal feelings toward him are about the same as yours. He has castigated me just as much as he has you. But there is a difference between respect for the office of President and respect for the man. The former is something which must not be soiled or sullied by unfair Senate debate. And the office of President carries with it not only the power but the obligation, under the constitution, to remove a general who challenges the constitution.

People are easily confused these days, but you can help to prevent their confusion. And while it might be popular and even healthy to impeach Harry Truman, do it on the grounds of corruption in his administration. There you might be on solid ground. Don't do it on an issue for which your father and every other President has kept the torch of civilian government burning—the principle that no soldier can overrule a civilian elected by the people.

Or, if you will, impeach the President on the ground that his policy is wrong. Impeach him on the issue of failure in China. It might be healthy if you or Senator Wherry introduced a resolution embodying the exact terms of the MacArthur letter to Joe Martin, and let the Senate debate it—debate the bombing of Chinese bases, the landing of Chiang Kai-Shek's troops on the mainland and the full probabilities and objectives of war with China.

This is an important, vital question upon which we should have full debate, upon which the public should be fully informed. I hope such a resolution will be introduced.

But do not, I urge, confuse the issue by challenging the basic principle of our constitution in regard to civilian rule.

Europe Watches U. S. A.

I have just returned from a trip through Europe. And I can report that you cannot travel abroad these days without sensing how vital is the issue now before our country. Many of the European nations have been through the struggle between military and civilian rule. They have seen the elected parliaments of Italy and Germany weaken. They have seen the people—shaken in their confidence of the democratic system, confused by unfair debate—turn to military dictatorships.

It is out of such confusion, when nations have weak civilian leaders and strong military leaders, that dictatorships spring.

In my opinion our country today faces a most dangerous crisis. Tempers are running high. We do not have a strong man in the White House. We do have a strong military man, who has sought to be in the White House.

Now, it is easy to jump on an unpopular President—as your family well remembers. It is easy to jump on him and to muddy up public opinion with confusing issues—such as the so-called Balinger scandals which led to the overwhelming defeat of your father, and which history later proved not to have been scandals after all.

It is also easy to fool the public with a lot of phony flag-waving on an issue which your father and no other President worth his salt would have stood for—namely, permitting a general to thumb his nose at the civilian branch of the government and get away with it.

But the times today are too dangerous. And it is in days such as these, when we do not have the most astute brains in or around the White House, that we need leadership and courage such as yours outside the White House to keep us on an even keel.

Respectfully yours,
DREW PEARSON

"This House is a poor Investment"
Says Mr. Steady Heat

Look at your own home—or the plans for the one you're going to build. Does it include Coal Heat and an ALL-PURPOSE Chimney?

If not, you are taking a big gamble—and so is the banker who helps finance it. A house equipped for piped fuels exclusively is a poor investment because it is exposed to all sorts of fuel emergencies.

Provision for Coal—the only fuel that can go to war without deserting the home front—is your best Comfort insurance. Before you buy or build, talk to your Coal Heating Service retailer about Coal Heat.

KILLER'S PACE

BY JULIUS LONG

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: In order to save Rose Bidault from the electric chair, Star Williams, her lawyer and my (Jim Marshall's) boss, tampered with the evidence and is exposed after Rose was acquitted. The only thing that can save Star from dishonor is to prove Rose innocent. But a few hours after she was released, she is murdered. One of the leads turned up led to Carl Prater's burial vault in which Rose's late husband was a partner. Prater, as a cost accountant, I watch a demonstration of these vaults in one of which a pretty girl, Clara Mayhew, is submerged in water.

XV

KITTY COYLE told me when I reached the office that Star Williams had been trying to locate the lady magician Sonya Sareeta and I found him in his private office reading the stock finals which carried the headline about Andy Tanner's filing disbarment charges against Star.

"Five will get you 10 Madam Sonya's tied up with Carl Prater. I told you about the La Jolla being his favorite night spot. How did you happen to meet that dame in the first place?"

Star looked uncomfortable at the question but said: "I went out to the La Jolla Club last night. I figured that I'd lost Rose Bidault to the hot seat and there was nothing I could do about it. I thought maybe a night club would relieve the tension and maybe I'd think of some angle. It was a lousy show and I was about set to go when Sonya came on with her magic act."

"It was a trick she did with a revolver that rang the bell. She got some jerk from the audience to come up and load the revolver with six live cartridges. Then she fired the gun six times in the general direction of the audience. Everybody was diving under tables and chairs, thinking she'd gone nuts. Of course she'd switched the loads to blanks and she was far enough away from the ringside tables to prevent the wads from striking anyone. "I saw my way out of the Bidault case. I got an introduction through Al Nanabarro, who owns the La Jolla Club.

"An attorney is so much more complicated than a revolver, and she knew nothing about throwing off the safety device that prevents discharge from far. But finally I persuaded her to try to teach me. It so happened that she had a duplicate of Rose Bidault's gun, duplicate that is, except for the pearl-handled grips. I figured out a way to gimmick the safety and she spent all night teaching me how to do it sleight-of-hand."

I had been around Star too long to let him fool me. There was a lot more to it than that.

I said ironically "I suppose you think it's coincidence that Carl Prater spends so much of his time at the La Jolla Club. And that McNamara went to see Prater right after his visit to Larry Stone."

STAR gave me a wry glance. "Wouldn't it be odd if Rose Bidault's story were on the level? Look at it—Rose and Stone, alone in her house heard a pistol shot in the room outside. Larry ran out first. It's possible that Larry saw the killer that he's known the killer from the start."

I got the idea. Blackmail. "So that's the way you tie up Stone with Prater?" "It's just an idea to kick around, till a better one comes along."

I read his mind. It was something the idea that Carl Prater could have murdered both Barney and Rose.

"Let me take care of Stone. If he did see the killer, I guarantee to deliver the killer's name."

Star held up a deprecatory hand. "No, Jim. This thing will require finesse. I've been trying to find Sonya. I want to give her further instructions about how to handle Stone."

"But Nick Ricardo wouldn't have got the shots if she hadn't talked to someone. You know that!"

"I think someone else must have tipped off Ricardo. Sonya would never do a thing like that merely for publicity."

I was dumfounded. Star is as smart as they come, but even the smartest man gets taken for a ride by a beautiful girl, and Sonya was certainly that. I couldn't stand seeing him deluded and wasting his time on her. So I made an excuse, left the office and drove to Fountain Square. There's a joint there called Dan's Place and Nick Ricardo practically lived there.

WHEN Ricardo had first spied me he became slightly pale. I had grinned and given him a nod toward a back booth. There he had come somewhat warily.

"Star bears you no ill-will," I told him. "He knows that I was only doing your job. But he is fighting with his back against the wall and the least you can do for him is to level about your tip to shoot those pix. Let's not be coy. Nick, information is your business and I can trade you information for an answer to my question."

Ricardo's ears pricked up, and his black eyes fairly snapped. "Well, I'm always ready to play ball Jim. You know that."

I hoped he didn't know that Star had already phoned Max Feldstein about Rose Bidault's new version of Barney's murder.

"Rose gave me a different version of the murder this morning. I think that's why she was stabbed shortly afterwards. I've a hunch the killer was right in the house, maybe the next room all the time listening to every word she said. Now who phoned that tin?"

"Well, I didn't say I could tell you that. Maybe when—"

I reached across the table and grabbed him by the neck. I squeezed and his eyes popped. I let go and he wheezed angrily.

"I was going to tell you anyway! You didn't have to get tough about it!"

La Monte Natilus Club Meeting

The Nautilus club of LaMonte held a contributed 1:00 o'clock luncheon April 11 at the home of Mrs. R. E. Hollenbeck.

Miniature flags of foreign countries were used as place cards and the menu was largely of foreign foods.

Mrs. J. E. Wheeler presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Hollenbeck presented a history of the Missouri Federation to the club. A membership pin was presented to Mrs. Wheeler, the retiring president.

Mrs. Hugo Kappelman, president for the coming year, outlined plans and appointed committees. Guy Ballew, chairman of the International Relations committee, introduced Miss Coucha Barnsya of Guatemala City, who is a foreign student at Warrensburg college. She used the question and answer method which was very informative. The committee presented her with a gift.

The club closed a very successful year, having attained the honor roll.

Joint Meeting Of Garden Clubs

One of the largest and most successful joint meetings of the Sedalia Garden clubs was held Friday afternoon in the basement of the First Baptist church, at which time Jack Reed, of Warrensburg, education assistant director of the Conservation Commission of Missouri in this district, was the guest speaker.

The meeting opened with a dessert luncheon which was decorated with arrangements of spring flowers brought by the members of the various Garden Clubs. The long table from which Mrs. A. H. Wilks and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell served coffee was covered with a lace cloth. The centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow jonquils and forsythia on either side of which were lighted yellow tapers in two branch crystal candelabra.

Mrs. L. H. Hodges, first vice chairman and social chairman of the Garden Club Council was in charge of the serving assisted by the first vice chairmen of each club.

Lavocation was by Mrs. T. W. Croxton.

The meeting was presided over by the Sedalia Garden Club Council president, Mrs. Oscar Dewolf, who presented Mrs. J. W. Boger, second vice president of the council who was program chairman for the afternoon.

Mrs. Boger expressed appreciation to all who had assisted her in arranging the affair and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Robert Phelan, conservation chairman of the council.

Mrs. Phelan stated that she was substituting for Mrs. Herbert Seifert, state conservation chairman of the Federated Garden Clubs of Missouri, who was unable to be present at the meeting. Mrs. Phelan stated that Mrs.

Seifert, with whom she had had the pleasure of working for the past four years, had planned the meeting and secured the program. She stated that the Highway Commission and Conservation Commission of Missouri had been very cooperative and it was through them that the Sedalia Garden club had been able to establish and maintain the Blue Star Memorial Roadside Park just west of Sedalia on highway 50. Through them, also, she said they had secured the speaker of the afternoon. She then introduced Mr. Reed, who took for his subject: "Conservation."

Mr. Reed gave a very informative talk on the subject in which he mapped out erosion conditions in China, through India and on to the United States. He gave the garden club members an opportunity to ask questions which many of them did and then showed two exceptionally good films, "Yours Is The Land" and "Our Springtime Wild Flowers."

At the conclusion of Mr. Reed's talk Mrs. DeWolf introduced the presidents of the nine garden clubs: Mrs. Frank S. Leach, Club No. 1; Mrs. A. B. Potts, Club No. 2; Mrs. H. L. Netherton, Club No. 3; Mrs. Raymond Weinrich, Club No. 4; Mrs. R. S. Haggard, Club No. 5; Mrs. B. E. Heacock, Club No. 6; Mrs. Paul Read, Club No. 7; Mrs. Ernest Martin, Club No. 8 and Mrs. Nathan Jones, Club No. 9.

The meeting was attended by 203 members.

Relatives Honor John Ilmberger

The relatives of John Ilmberger, blacksmith, who retired last week after fifty years business on East Main, surprised him Sunday afternoon with a party at his home, 1101 South Massachusetts.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ilmberger were presented with gifts. During the afternoon, two nieces, Mrs. Clyde Lear of Plattsburg, Mo., and Mrs. Z. J. Otto of Columbia, called by telephone to express their regret at not being present at the family gathering. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Berlin, Mr. and Mrs. Dell Ilmberger, Mr. and Mrs. Champ Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuhlman.

Cakes, decorated to commemorate the occasion, together with ice cream and coffee were served.

Speech Club
Asks Suggestions

At the meeting of the Speech club Friday night at the Public Library, it was decided that to create more interest among the people of Sedalia toward this civic self-improvement project, the members would select topics for their 4-minute talks that would interest the citizens of Sedalia. For the coming session, Friday night, April 20th, the question "Should taxes be increased in Sedalia?" would be discussed by one of the members, and thereafter other civic subjects would be selected. Anyone having a project or topic to suggest for discussion can call Louis S. Payton, district public health engineer, at phone number 106 and he will bring the suggested subjects before the next session for selection.

A variety of talks were given last Friday night, among which were: Clyde Beatty's Circus, General MacArthur's Dismissal, Science and the Bible, Radio Telephoning, Fertilizing for Vitamins, Democracy at Work, and a Formula for Self-Confidence. This last named talk dealt with auto-suggestion over circumstance and listed six rules toward attaining greater self-confidence, and eventually greater happiness.

Mrs. Carrington Shields was welcomed as a new member to the club, and she voluntarily expressed herself as being pleased with the educational and self-improvement facilities of the club.

India Border People Armed
NEW DELHI — (AP) — The Indian government has issued fire-arms licenses to some border areas to enable the local people to cope with individual and sporadic attacks, Home Minister C. Rajagopalachari told parliament. He did not furnish particulars but said special training in the use of firearms was given to border people in some areas and arms supplied at government expense.

The U.S. farm plant—land, buildings, livestock and equipment—is estimated to be worth about $91 billion.

The nuthatch builds its nest in the decayed trunks of trees, so that its young may eat the insects that flourish in this habitat.

Wage Earners
Over Seventy-five

Many employed wage earners over 75 years of age have applied for Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefit payments, according to Scott Webber, manager of the Sedalia social security office.

While Mr. Webber is greatly surprised at the comparatively large number of insured persons in this age group, his office has no way of knowing the total number. The reason for this lack of information is that many insured workers who have passed their seventy-fifth birthday have not applied for benefit payments. "They do not yet realize that they and their dependents can now have these monthly payments," he says.

Before the new social security law went into effect last September, payments could not be made to any insured worker over 65 who continued in a job covered by social security and earned over $14.99 in a month. Under the amended law, a worker over 75 may engage in any kind of employment or self-employment and have benefit payments regardless of the amount of his earnings. Between the ages of 65 and 75, the insured person may now have $50 a month in work covered by social security.

Webber says it has been found that most people are reluctant to stop working at any age if they are still in good health. He further points out that this new provision for insured people over age 75 will be an incentive to continue in gainful work.

He urges all insured workers age 75 or older, and who have not yet applied for benefit payments to do so without delay. Back payments can be made for as many as six months, but failure to make application at the Sedalia office promptly, may result in the loss of one or more months benefit payments to the worker and his dependents.

Look to a Race By Three Clubs In Each League

Managers of Big League Clubs Express Hopes

NEW YORK, April 16 — (AP) — Big league managers expect three club races in each league this summer with Boston, Cleveland and New York battling in the American and New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn in the National.

Chuck Dressen, new Dodger manager, put himself on the spot by picking Brooklyn to win the pennant. Casey Stengel, boss of the world champion New York Yankees, also said he expected to win again.

Paul Richards, taking over as Chicago White Sox manager, wouldn't pick anybody to beat his club which finished sixth last year. And Luke Sewell of Cincinnati also shied from predictions.

Bucky Harris of Washington and Stengel leaned toward Cleveland as "the team to beat" but Al Lopez, new Cleveland boss, thought he would have to beat the Yanks to win.

Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs and Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves figured the National a five-club scramble with St. Louis and Boston also involved. Most of the others predicted a Phil-Dodger-Giant struggle.

The comments:

American League
Casey Stengel, New York — "I have good players and we have the right attitude. They like winning and I expect to win again. Cleveland looks very good to me and should give us the most trouble. I haven't seen the Red Sox but I know they'll be tough."

Steve O'Neill, Boston — "I think we have a good chance. It will be a close three-club race among Cleveland, New York and Boston with Detroit having a chance if they can get pitching to make up for the loss of Houtteman."

Red Rolfe, Detroit — "Boston's only weakness was pitching and they picked up Scarborough and Wight. Cleveland real dark horse. We're same club less Houtteman. You're sure to miss a boy like that. If Trucks and Rogovin fully recover from sore arms we might make a close fight of it. I'd predict the finish like this: Boston, New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Chicago."

Zack Taylor, St. Louis — "I don't have any idea how we'll finish, our team will go just as far as the pitching." Luke Sewell of Cincinnati is one of the few skippers who has no visual pitching problems. He had Ewell Blackwell (17-15), one of the best in the business, all ever, they had poor pitching last season and carried the race to the final day. The Giants have good pitching and right defense but will not score many runs. So far my club has looked only ordinary. We haven't hit and when we did the other club walloped our pitchers. Chicago, I believe, will be the dark horse."

National League
Eddie Sawyer, Philadelphia: "It looks now as though the Phillies, Dodgers and Giants will fight it out. Brooklyn has the best ball club, man for man but the pitching is uncertain. How-

Top Rookies in Starting Lineup

By Ted Meier
Associated Press Sports Writer

The success of rookies Tom Morgan and Mickey Mantle for the New York Yankees highlighted the grapefruit league that ended yesterday.

A year ago Mantle was playing Class C ball with Joplin (Mo) in the Western Association and Morgan with Binghamton (NY) in the Class A Eastern League. Today, both will be in the starting lineup for the world champion Yankees performing before President Truman and a distinguished audience in Washington's Griffith Stadium.

Truly theirs is a success story in the American sports tradition. Morgan, called the "right-handed White Ford" shows much of the poise and control of the southpaw youngster who joined the Yanks last summer and won nine straight games.

Morgan pitched his first 25 innings this spring without yielding an earned run. Altogether he pitched 27 innings, gave up 21 hits, six runs, four walks and fanned 12. The 20-year old El Monte, Calif., rookie won 17 and lost eight last year for Binghamton.

The 19-year old Mantle has been hailed as Joe DiMaggio's heir apparent. A switch-hitter, who socks the ball just as well from the right or left side of the plate. The Commerce, Okla., rookie has compiled a .384 average in 30 games, including seven doubles, one triple, nine homers and 21 runs batted in. Mantle demonstrated the form that has made him the rookie sensation of the year at Ebbets Field yesterday. Although the Yanks lost to Brooklyn, 7 to 6, Mickey connected for four straight hits, batting right and left against three pitchers, climaxing his day with an eighth inning homer. He played right field.

Picked by many to take the American League pennant, the Boston Red Sox finished the grapefruit league season by taking the Braves, 6 to 3, for their 11th straight victory. The New York Giants again walloped the Cleveland Indians, 9 to 1, and the National League champion Phillies dumped the Athletics, 8 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs whipped the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 2, in the battle between the two grapefruit league leaders and the St. Louis Browns downed the Cardinals, 9 to 6.

In other games Washington took Pittsburgh, 5-2; Cincinnati humbled Indianapolis, 5-2; and Detroit walloped Louisville, 12-5.

Bueschers Lead In Bowling

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 16 — (AP) — The first week-end of competition in the second annual Missouri State Handicap Bowling tournament was completed last night.

Buescher Memorial Funeral Home of Jefferson City held the team lead with 3013.

The tournament continues for three more week-ends. Frank Gartner and Joe Glader, St. Louis, head the doubles event with 1246. The singles leader is Raymond Staib, Neosho, with 722.

Tom Hennessy of St. Louis moved out in front in the all events with 1935.

The State Bowling Association also met last night and elected J. W. Sicklin of Columbia as its new president. The Association selected Columbia as the site of next year's tournament. Dates for the 1952 tournament were not set.

Reliance on Pitching For Series Start

Complete Eight Game Schedule For Tuesday

By Joe Reichler

NEW YORK, April 16 — (AP) — "We'll win if the pitching holds up."

Ever hear that before? Sure, it's the same old managerial moan as a new major league baseball season begins today with a game in each circuit. A complete 8-game slate is on tap for tomorrow.

"My only worry is pitching," says Manager Casey Stengel of the defending champion New York Yankees who help the Senators inaugurate the American league's 51st season in Washington today.

"It all depends on Allie Reynolds. If his arm comes around in the next 10 days, we'll be in fine shape and should win again. Until I know about him, I won't be able to line up my starters."

Rookie Tom Morgan, making the jump from Class A ball, got the opening day assignment. A capacity crowd of 23,000 was expected to watch President Harry S. Truman throw out the first ball, in southpaw style. Then Bob Kuzava (9-10), another left hander, will take over for the Nats.

Bucky Harris, Washington pilot believes his club is better than last year except for the pitching. Luke Sewell of Cincinnati is one of the few skippers who has no visual pitching problems. He had Ewell Blackwell (17-15), one of the best in the business, all

V. Nelson's 547 led the singles division followed by C. Mullin's with 538, and E. Mosier's 536. The high series rolled by V. Nelson in the singles also moved her in front in the all events as she totaled 1363 pins for the singles, doubles, and team event.

M. E. Merrill's 199 scratch was high single game and gave her a special medal. Trophies went to the singles, doubles and all events winners with other medals to the team winners.

primed for today's opener between the Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates in Cincinnati. Another bumper crowd of some 22,000 was slated to watch the lanky right-hander take on Cliff Chambers (12-15), Pirate southpaw.

Five Good Starters
"Pitching is my strong point," says Sewell. "Show me a better starting five than Blackwell, Howard Fox (11-8), Ken Raffensberger (14-19), Herm Wehmeier (10-18) and Will Ramo (8-14). Billy Meyer, Pittsburgh pilot, thinks his club can get out of the basement "provided we get the pitching and Ralph Kiner works out at first base." His starters include Murry Dickson, Vernon Law, Will Werle and rookie Bob Friend.

All other managers will have to wait another day to get their first official indication as to how their pitching will hold up. They are all leading with their aces. Stout Steve O'Neill openly declares that his Boston Red Sox have the best chucking in the American league.

Mel Parnell (18-10), is the choice to oppose Vic Raschi (21-8) at the Yankee Stadium in the opening clash between the Yankees and Red Sox before some 53,000 tomorrow.

It will be up to Hal Newhouser (15-13), the old "stopper" on the mound for the Detroit Tigers in their game with Cleveland. He will be opposed by Bob Lemon (23-11), the majors' biggest winner last year. Some 54,000 were expected to attend.

Billy Pierce (12-16) and Ned Garver (13-18), pair of efficient hurlers with losing ball clubs last season, were to oppose each other before 15,000 in St. Louis as the Chicago White Sox and Browns clash.

"Our team will go just as far as the pitching," says Zach Taylor of the Browns. It would be cruel to ask Zach "what pitching?"

The same can be asked of Jimmy Dykes, whose Athletics take off the Senators in Philadelphia in the first night game opener in the American league. Bobby Shantz (8-14) is to oppose Washington's Hudson (14-14). Don Newcombe (19-11) and

Balanced Farm Notes From Over County

Charles W. Finley of Sedalia Route 2 has 3 new terrace outlets built last fall that have washed very little this winter. The answer seems to come in two parts. First, a crop of soybeans were plowed under just before seeding to add organic matter and second, the crossberms were put in less than 75 feet apart so there was no soil movement between crossberms.

In the same neighborhood, Frank Van Dyke of Smithton Route 1 recently spread 2 carloads (112 tons) of rock phosphate on his farm. There is considerable saving by buying the phosphate in this form but a good deep growing legume as red or sweet clover needs to be grown after the phosphate is applied before maximum use of the phosphate can be made by such crops as corn and wheat. This rock phosphate should be plowed under.

Wiskur Brothers of Windsor and their landlord Dr. D. P. Dyer of Sedalia are very proud of their 10 acre field of fescue and ladino clover which they expect to provide a lot of pasture for their dairy herd this year. They also have 16 acres of new alfalfa that looks very good. This field had a good stand of 2nd year sweet clover last year that was plowed under ahead of the alfalfa. Soil treatments were also put on according to soil test including lime, potash and 1500 lbs. of raw rock phosphate per acre. The young alfalfa crop gives the appearance of repaying all the above expense very quickly.

The terrace outlets on the Stevens McClure farm on west 16th Street Road were observed the other morning doing a good job of carrying terrace water to a road culvert. Mr. McClure was in the Association several years ago and now has his water management system nearly complete.

Another former member whose water management work is apparently doing a good job is Charles G. Schlobohm of La Monte Route 2. A stop was made on his farm recently to see a "Morning Glory" structure that was put in 2 years ago to protect terraces and outlets on 40 acres. It appears to be doing its job very satisfactorily.

Controlling of Poultry Insects

A recent publication from the Extension Service of the University of Missouri Poultry Department gives the latest up-to-the-minute recommendations on poultry insect control, reports Roy I. Coplen, County Agent. He suggests this be filed for future reference.

For chicken body lice paint roosts with Black Leaf 40, or 13 tablespoons 25% wettable lindane per gallon of water. Head lice are controlled by dusting with 5% DDT.

Shaft lice which feed on feathers may be controlled with nicotine or lindane as recommended for chicken body lice. For bedbugs spray the interior of the house with 28 tablespoons of 50% wettable DDT per gallon of water.

For house flies in the poultry house use 50% wettable chlordane—1 pound to 3 gallons of water; to 3 gallons of water; or lindane, 1 pound to 10 gallons of water. Spray around feeders, waterers, and windows.

For chigger mites spray the range area with 2 pounds of 50% wettable chlordane to 100 gallons of water per acre. The scaly leg mite is controlled by dipping infested legs in a mixture consisting of 1 1/2 oz. of 25% Lindane per gallon of water, or dip infested legs in mixture of equal parts of kerosene and linseed oil and repeat the treatment again in 30 days.

For rats use Warfarin, 5% mixture 1 pound to 19 pounds chicken mash. Cover chicken feeders at night.

4-H Heifers to be Exhibited at Show

The annual Black and White show scheduled for April 27th at the State Fair ground this year will feature the sale of 5 to 10 registered Holstein heifers to 4-Hers interested in dairying. The 4-Hers' association in making these Central Missouri Holstein Breed heifers available to help 4-H members get a start in registered Holsteins. The heifers have been selected by a committee of Dr. C. C. Jones of Blackburn, John Short of Bois-de-arc Farms, and Ed Streeter of Marshall. "Each of these heifers has been selected both for type and production. In fact, every heifer will be out of a 400-pound or better dam," claim Ed Streeter, committee chairman.

"The heifers will be sold promptly at 10:30 a. m. However, this is not to be an auction," claims Jerry Houlton, association president. "The tentative plans are place a price tag on each heifer. The order of purchase will be determined by drawing names from a hat with the first name getting first choice, second name second choice, and so on until each heifer is purchased. In this manner, we hope to hold the prices down within reason."

According to Houlton, the heifers will be priced as follows: Heifers dropped between July 1 and August 15, 1949 will be sold for $200.00. Heifers dropped between August 15 and October 1, 1949 will go for $175.00 and those dropped between October 1 and November 15, 1949 are priced at $150.00.

"Since finding heifers of this type and production has not been an easy task for Streeter and his committee, I certainly hope that the 4-H dairy members will display an active interest in the fine program that the association is sponsoring," says Jim Perry, assistant county agent.

Harry Ball To Judge Holsteins

The Central Missouri District of Holsteins will have a Holstein show at the Missouri State Fair grounds April 27. These great black and white cows will be judged by Harry Ball, herd manager of the University of Missouri dairy herd of Columbia. Bob Howard, national field man will be at the show for the entire day. From this select group of cattle will be chosen to represent the Central Missouri District composed of 12 counties to compete for higher honors at the American Royal Dairy show in Kansas City in May.

The 4-H calf sale will begin at 10:30 a. m. and at 11 a wire recording will be taken. A junior show will follow and a trophy (donated by the Main Street Drug company) will be awarded the Central Missouri District 4-H champion. For the first time this year a traveling award will be given to the grand champion cow. The trophy is a gift of Meadow Gold, Tullis-Hall and Freese-Rissler dairies.

More Metal Scrap Needed

Metal scrap iron and steel is needed to keep the steel mills rolling at full capacity, is the report from the National Production Authority, U. S. Department of Commerce, reports the County Extension Office.

Six million more tons will be needed in 1951 than in 1950. Much of this must come from the farms. Worn-out tractors, plows, rakes, and harrows—even such small pieces as plow points, bolts, and washers—are to be found on almost every farm. All is needed to make the steel we must have.

Dairymen to View Pastures

Dairymen are invited to see some good pasture on April 20. Three dairy farms where some pasture has been improved will be seen on this tour.

The first stop at 1:15 p. m. will be at Melvin Turner's 4 miles west of Sedalia on Highway 50. The pasture mixture here is timothy, brome, alfalfa and ladino clover. Lime, raw rock phosphate, and processed fertilizer based on the needs of the soil according to a soil test were applied to bring the fertility level up to a point that plant food does not limit the production. This seeding was made in the fall of 1948.

The next stop at 2:15 p. m. will be at Henry Alt's located on Highway 65, 4 miles north of Windsor Junction and 2 miles south of Anderson School. Here last spring's seeding of orchard grass and ladino clover pastured last summer will be seen.

The final stop at 3:15 p. m. will be on the farm of Dr. D. P. Dyer 6 miles west of Windsor Junction, 1 mile south and 1/4 mile west. Fescue and ladino clover will be seen here. This was seeded the spring of 1950 and promises a lot of pasture this year.

Many questions are asked as to which grass, brome, orchard grass, or fescue to sow with ladino.

Market Cattle Are Fewer This Year

"Fewer cattle will be marketed from April through September this year than last year". This statement comes from the producers Live Stock Marketing Association to the County Extension Office.

This information is on the basis of a survey the Association made this spring. This also shows that there will be an increased volume of hogs and sheep. More grass cattle are expected this summer from the western range states.

The smaller cattle marketings are explained by the fact that there has been a shift of feeders to calves and light weight yearlings, many of which will be headed for market during the fall and winter season.

The survey indicates there will be a sharp drop in June and July, an increase in August and seasonal bulge in supplies for September. The manager, H. D. Wright, says this survey shows that many livestock producers warned that too many restrictions on the industry are creating confusion and uncertainty that could eventually result in reduced feeding operations and less meat for the consumer. He said that in the interest of maximum production of food products the cooperative is backing other farm groups in urging that federal price control authority not be extended beyond June 30.

Israel Faces a Sulphur Shortage
TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's sulphur crisis has been worsened recently due to a cutback in U. S. exports. In an attempt to ease the shortage, a Haifa chemical company is considering the production of sulphuric acid from iron pyrites, found in Cyprus, North Africa and Spain.

Israel needs sulphuric acid to produce fertilizer and for the manufacture of many other industrial products. Government authorities find some consolation in the fact that about 2,500 tons of Dead Sea potash for fertilizer can soon be turned over to Israeli farmers.

Louis Bestgen as a Soil Conservation Pioneer

A gently sloping Bestgen-built terrace is being inspected by Marion Clark, University agricultural engineering specialist. Louis Bestgen, Tipton farmer and pioneer in the business of terrace outlet construction is on top the ridge looking down its length.

From the Missouri Farmer
The community surrounding Tipton in Moniteau county has one of the highest concentrations of farm water management systems in Missouri and with all probability is one of the top such areas in the United States. Drive any direction out of Tipton and farms without visible terraces, waterways and structures are exceptions to the general rule.

Closer investigation as to why farmers in the vicinity of Tipton are soil conservation minded would long until Bestgen and his neighbors could see the results in the way of increased production from fields that had been terraced and limed. Water no longer raced across fields to cut deep gullies and carry off tons of soil from sheet erosion. Louis's terraces made run-off water "walk-off" and much of it was absorbed by the soil because of the improved tilth following liming and the growing of legume crops and plowing under of green manures. A complete water management lead a passer-by to the door of Louis Bestgen, widely known Missouri soil contractor and builder of terraces since 1928. His story is one of hardships and achievements. The hardships have not been forgotten by Bestgen and his family and co-workers who have helped farmers all over the state plan and construct workable water management programs on their farms.

Clark and Bestgen stand in the path of out-sweeping water dumped by a division channel into this grassed waterway. The discoloration of the sod is caused by slit carried from a feed lot and 55 acres of farming land to the right. In the background is a Missouri thin-section soil saving dam, a low-cost structure used at ends of waterways to dump water out of the waterway cutting a gully back into the sod.

Training his children and fellow workers to fight soil losses through program was put to work on the Bestgen farm. Many farmers would have stopped at this point and waited to see what was going to happen to their neighbors after fields had hit rock bottom as a result of the loss of most of the top soil from soil erosion.

Not so with Bestgen. He took his small terracing blade and hit the roads around Tipton to help his neighbors establish terraces on their vanishing crop and pasture land. Power used varied from two the construction of adequate water management systems is an achievement that will continue through the years.

Examining the deeply matted sod in this waterway, Clark and Bestgen commented that farmers learned from seeding and fertilizing grassed waterways how much plant food it took to grow good pasture.

Bestgen-terraced field are healed from cankerous, gullied sores; and now waving green fields and prosperous farmsteads abound where once soil erosion reigned supreme.

Often a man's achievements are passed by in the rush of life. But to eight head of horses on the blade. Problems arose because at that time no adequate equipment had been developed to do this kind of work. Manufacturers of farm machinery were slow to bring out new equipment for fear that slow sales would cause financial losses from what they knew to be a worthwhile industry. So, Bestgen had to improvise equipment so that he could construct not so for Louis Bestgen for he was honored by members of the Missouri Terracing Conservation Contractors association at the 13th annual short course on Terracing and Conservation held in February at Columbia.

Time-out was taken by J. C. Wooley, past chairman of the Agricultural Engineering Department, to cite the record of Louis Bestgen and his outstanding pioneer work in the business of terrace and terrace outlet construction. O. H. "Ike" Reid, Bethany, was also equally honored for his outstanding pioneer work in the business of farm pond and farm lake construction. Both were awarded bronze plaques by their co-workers and the members of the University Agricultural Engineering Department.

Back in 1928, Louis Bestgen, on his farm 8 1/2 miles northwest of Tipton, first started experimenting with water and soil management through the construction of terraces and concrete outlets. That year he also began a soil improvement program on his farm. Five cars (255 tons) of lime were bought and spread by two wagons and a trailer lime spreader by Bestgen that year. Some folks nearby said to one another, "Another good Dutchman gone crazy." Bestgen went ahead with his water management and soil improvement program despite the fact that he knew it would fall heavily on his shoulders if he and his ideas failed. It was not ures it as much as he does the plague he received from his fellow contractors last February. A roll-over Fresno was soon purchased and Bestgen kept striking back at soil erosion by constructing mile after mile of terraces on neighboring farms. A rubber-tired tractor was soon acquired and in one year Bestgen built 103 miles of terraces in his community. That year he burned 29,810 gallons of gasoline in his tractor.

In 1936, Bestgen, his sons and co-workers really went in the business of terrace construction. A Whirlwind Terracer was purchased along with more Fresno tractors. They hit the highways and byways of Missouri and made a farm-to-farm campaign against soil erosion. This caravan of soil-moving equipment wandered back and forth through 20 counties in central and north Missouri building terraces and waterways.

They touched the Iowa line during this season-long campaign and came back home only after it became too cold to continue sleeping outside. The crew would bunk down in barn-rooms, pig-sheds, hay-stacks or any place where they could assume a horizontal position after a long day's work of pushing in ditches and building terraces.

This was the year of crop failures and distress on most farms in Missouri. Corn averaged 8 bushels per acre that year and hot, dry winds choked with Kansas sand filled the gloomy sky. But Louis went on ahead of his crew, preaching soil conservation and winning farmers over to a new way of thinking.

Again in 1937, Bestgen and his crew took their fight for conservation to farms all over Central and Northern parts of the state. This time they had a tractor-trailer truck to haul most equipment. Sleeping and eating quarters were still just as severe and just as many hardships were encountered.

In 1939, Bestgen bought his first dozer and fashioned a blade for it out of an old road grader. He bought a five-yard scoop and the business of moving dirt became cheaper to the farmer. He loaned his roll-overs to farmers so that they could assist in making fills and taking part in the construction of their farm water management system.

Since 1936, Louis Bestgen has completed 386 farm water and soil management systems throughout Central and North Missouri. Partial work on other farms runs up the total even further. Bestgen has always advised the farmer to start his soil conservation program on the best land first. He doesn't recommend installing a complete program in one year. Bestgen thinks it best that a farmer take one field at a time and let the first field's increased yields pay for the cost of completing the rest of the program.

Bestgen has always made it a policy to do the work right and if some part of the water management system should fail or fall below standards set by the College of Agriculture for any reason, it would be repaired at no extra cost to the farmer. A good soil contractor will refuse many prospective jobs because the farmer wants something done which would provide an unsound water management system on that farm. Well-built terraces, waterways, concrete structures, ponds and diversion channels should always be built to do the job required on the specific farm, says Bestgen.

Louis Bestgen is in semi-retirement now at his home, which he and his youngest son, Bonnie, built in Tipton. He still operates his old home farm and has recently acquired another one on which he is completing the construction of water ways and outlets first and then will build terraces.

Sick Japanese Sailor Interred
SINGAPORE — (P) — The first Japanese to come ashore in Singapore since the war did so because he was sick. A Japanese sailor, 19-year-old Yoji Toyama, was taken off the 6,343-ton Japanese freighter Tatsunuma Maru. Toyama suffered an acute appendicitis attack. Even though he was sick, he had to be treated as an enemy as no peace treaty has been signed with Japan. Now this Japanese sailor will have to remain in Outram Road prison, until he is repatriated on one of the Japanese ships which frequently pass by Singapore.

The "Voice of Defense" Reports to Missouri

In times like these, when our way of life is threatened, Missourians turn to their fastest, most dependable means of communication—and ask—

Is our telephone system prepared to handle its vital role as the 'Voice of Defense'...

Here's part of the answer. There are nearly twice as many telephones serving Missouri as there were before World War II. Thousands of miles of long distance circuits have been added. About 5,100 more telephone men and women are on the job to see this new emergency through—skilled, experienced people, tested and proved in many emergencies.

But preparedness means continued growth. We're looking ahead and working ahead to keep telephone service one of Missouri's greatest assets in its defense efforts.
